M:36/10 Wilbur House (c.1887)
1102 Edgevale Drive
Section 7:2

This Second Empire house with its hallmark mansard roof was built c.1887 for Eliza Stone Condict Wilbur and her husband, Jeremiah B. Wilbur. The detached dwelling originally sat on 28-1/2 acres of land and had direct access to the Colesville Turnpike. Today the property consists of 19,600 square feet of land and is known as Lot 9, Woodside Park Section 7, with vehicular access from Watson Road.

The two-story frame house, which faces east, has a main block and a rear ell. The siding is clapboard and there are twin center chimneys. The main block is three bays wide and has a slate shingled mansard roof. Centered on the east is a double central door sheltered by a full-width one-story porch with chamfered posts.

All of the windows in the house, including the rear ell, are 2/2 sash and feature slim architraves with molding strip cornices. The outer bays of the second story and mansard roof level hold paired (double) windows. The side entrance in the rear ell has an interesting pedimented transom.

The house is remarkable for a high level of architectural integrity. The few changes that have been made are confined to the rear ell. A small one-story addition was built between the main block and rear ell, and another at the rear (west) elevation. In 1994 the porch on the north facade of the rear ell was enclosed and a deck was added.¹

1102 Edgevale Drive
Section 8:2

The Wilbur House (c. 1887) is architecturally significant as a fine, well preserved example of the Second Empire style with a number of outstanding architectural details unusual in an early farmhouse. It is one of only two or three remaining Second Empire houses in this part of the County.

Eliza Stone Condict was born in Washington, D.C. in 1840, the first child and only daughter of Dr. Henry Ford Condict and Jane Adelaide Causin Condict. A brother, Causin, was born in 1843. In 1852 Dr. Condict acquired 57 acres near Sligo, part of a tract known as Labyrinth, and the Condict family moved to Montgomery County to a house now known as Grey Rocks.²

The 1880 U. S. Census lists the residents of the Condict homestead as Henry Condict, 76, physician, widow[er]; Eliza S. Weaver, 40, his daughter, a widow; Causin Condict, 38, farmer; and Causin's wife, 41. Information on Eliza's first husband has not been uncovered. In 1883, Eliza married Jeremiah B. Wilbur at Grace Church.³

The Wilbur House was built on 28-1/2 acres of land conveyed to Eliza Stone Condict Wilbur in 1887 by her father. The Wilbur property had direct access to the Colesville Turnpike; a right-of-way across the property was preserved for Dr. Condict and his son, Causin, who resided on the remaining 28-1/2 acres to the north.⁴ The division of the property, the access, and the two dwellings are shown on an 1894 Hopkins map.

In a will drawn up by Eliza Wilbur in 1907, she refers to "our home, 'Sunnyside,' where we now live," [i.e. the Wilbur House] and also to "the house and lot situated on Spring St., Sligo, Maryland, purchased from Elijah Leizer and his wife." Eliza bequeathed both properties to Jeremiah. In the event Jeremiah predeceased her, "Sunnyside" was to be sold and the proceeds divided equally "among the six children of my deceased brother Causin Condict," while the Spring Street property was left to Jeremiah's sister and two brothers. There is no indication that Eliza had children from either of her marriages.⁵

Section 8:3

Eliza died in 1912 and Jeremiah in 1914. In August, 1914, the home farm called "Sunnyside," consisting of 28-1/2 acres, "being also the farm upon which the said Eliza Stone C. Wilbur resided at the time of her death," was sold to James A. Watson for $13,000.⁶

The house remained in the Watson family for more than 40 years. In 1927, Mary C. Watson, James Watson's wife, conveyed the house on one acre of land, referred to as "Lot 3 in Block M-1," to the Watsons' son, Robert C. Watson.⁷

Robert Watson sold the house in March, 1957 to John and Mary Preston, who subsequently defaulted on their mortgage and the house was sold by a court-appointed trustee to the Harrison Development Corporation. At that time the house was described as a "detached" frame house of ten rooms and three and a half baths, with a shingle roof and hot water heat.⁸

The house was conveyed to Harrison Barnes, president of Harrison Development, and his wife, Betty, in January of 1971. In June, 1976, the Harrisons sold the house to Richard and Celia Futrovsky, who resided there for 20 years. The house was conveyed to the present owners, Celia Shapiro and Jay Dorfman in April, 1996.⁹

⁶ Deed 246:77, Montgomery County Land Records.

The Spring Street property was sold at auction in July, 1915; it is described at PBR 17:193 as a two-story frame house with 9 rooms, fronting on Spring Street, in a subdivision of the late John C. Wilson's land, consisting of a little more than half an acre.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The Barnes house is significant as an example of Victorian architecture typical of that constructed in Montgomery County from the mid-nineteenth through the early twentieth centuries. The house was probably built for Mrs. Eliza Stone Condict Wilbur about 1887.¹ Eliza's house was built on 28 1/2 acres of a tract of land referred to as "Labyrinth" which she received from her father, Henry Condict, in January of 1887.² Eliza resided on the farm which she called "Sunnyside" with her husband, Jeremiah, until her death in 1912. She left the farm to Jeremiah by her last will and testament. In August of 1914, after Jeremiah's death, the house was sold to James A. Watson.³

The house remained in the Watson family for many years. After the death of James Watson's wife, Mary, he conveyed the house to one of his sons, Robert C. Watson, in August of 1948.⁴ Robert sold the house in March of 1957 to John and Mary Preston.⁵ The Prestons defaulted on their mortgage and the house was sold by a court appointed trustee to the Harrison Development Corporation. The house was then described as a "Detached" frame house of ten rooms and three and a half baths, with a shingle room and hot water heat.⁶ The house was conveyed to Harrison Barnes, president of Harrison Development Corp., and his wife, Betty, in January of 1971.⁷ In June of 1976, they sold the house to the present owners, Richard and Celia Futrovsky.⁸

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is an interesting Victorian building, with a number of sophisticated details not usually seen in area rural homes. It is a two-story, frame structure with a mansard roof. The main (east) facade has three bays, with a central door. A one-story, open Victorian porch crosses the front. End-windows in the second story here are double windows. There are three dormers on the roof on this facade, and the end dormers are also double windows. All of the windows in the house have 2/2 sash, and slim architraves with molding strip cornices. The gambrel roof is covered with patterned slate shingles, and there are twin-central chimneys. Siding is clapboard. The nearby William Thompson house (now the Holy Name H.S. Convent) is the only other area dwelling of similar styling.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Was possibly the R.W. Burche house, shown on Hopkins' 1878 Atlas. It seems to have been the 28 acre farm of Mrs. E.S. Wilbur by 1894. An old brass name plate on the door reads "Mr. & Mrs. Harrison E. Barnes". The Barnes family is an old Silver Spring family.
